See the Flying Scotsman in action

ONE of the world's most famous trains, the Flying Scotsman, will arrive at King's Cross St. Pancras station tomorrow after journeying through the capital.

Don't miss the chance to see it at various points along the route. It will pass through Alexandra Palace, Haringey and Finsbury Park before arriving at King's Cross St. Pancras at 2pm. It will then depart at 5.10pm for its return to Scarborough.

The best place to see the vintage steam train will be from bridges along the route.

The locomotive was built in Doncaster in 1953. It was named the Flying Scotsman after the London to Edinburgh rail service, which started in 1862.

Future of cross-London travel

THE first of the new Elizabeth line trains was welcomed into passenger service in east London and Essex yesterday.

Eleven of the modern, air-conditioned trains will be introduced on the TfL Rail route between Liverpool Street and Shenfield by autumn, and will form part of a fleet of 66 on the Elizabeth line which opens through central London next year.

The Mayor of London Sadiq Khan said: 'I'm delighted that our first state-of-the-art Elizabeth line train has entered service on the TfL Rail service. It gives Londoners a first look at a new service that will transform travel across London and the south east when the line opens.

'The Crossrail programme remains on time and on budget, and the huge success of this project shows how vital it is for the whole of the country that we also push ahead with Crossrail 2.'

When fully open in 2019, the Elizabeth line will increase central London's rail capacity by ten per cent, carrying more than half a million passengers a day.

Keep cool on your commute

WITH warmer weather set to continue, don't forget to keep hydrated on your journey by carrying water.

Passengers are also advised to:

- Help others off the train if they are ill as it is easier to get help on a platform
- Not board a train or bus if you feel unwell
