Changes at Highbury & Islington station

WORK is under way to replace the bridge over the rail lines at Highbury Corner. The next phase of work requires the entrance of Highbury & Islington Tube station near the Famous Cock Tavern to be closed from today.

Until mid-December, entry and exit is via the other gate line. The ticket machines are still available.

Work will take place in front of the other entrance between February and May next year.

All change for Holland Park

HOLLAND Park Tube will close in January next year so the station's two lifts can be replaced.

The current lifts are nearly 30 years old and no longer as reliable as they need to be.

The station will re-open in August 2016. London Underground (LU) explored in detail the option of replacing the lifts one at a time and keeping the station open. However, this was neither the safest nor least disruptive option for customers. Also, the time taken to complete the work on both lifts would increase from 30 to 64 weeks if they were replaced one at a time while keeping the station open.

Other work to modernise the station will be carried out at the same time, including accessibility and security improvements.

David Waboso, LU's capital programmes director, said: 'Customer safety is our number one priority and, in order to replace the lifts in the safest way and with the least amount of disruption, we need to close the station. This decision has not been taken lightly and we will work hard to complete this vital modernisation as quickly as possible, keeping customers and local businesses informed as the work progresses.'

Lift replacement in Tube stations is a lengthy process owing to the restricted space underground and the complexity of working in cramped lift shafts. Because of this, replacing lifts at a station like Holland Park – with a single lift shaft that continues deep underground – takes some months.

Travel advice

While the station is closed, customers are advised to use nearby Notting Hill Gate or Shepherd's Bush Tube stations. From Holland Park Tube station, Notting Hill Gate Tube station is a seven-minute walk or nine-minute bus journey served by routes 31, 94 and 148. Shepherd's Bush station is a 13-minute walk or ten-minute bus journey served by routes 31, 94, 148 and 228.

Tour of Britain finishes in the capital on Sunday

THE Aviva Tour of Britain culminates in London on Sunday, affecting travel in central areas.

Starting and ending on Regent Street, the 93km route passes Piccadilly Circus, Trafalgar Square, the Strand and Whitehall multiple times.

Stations close to the route will be busier than usual. Buses around the event area will be on diversion, or will terminate earlier than usual.

Road closures will be in place around Whitehall, Westminster and central London. Waterloo Bridge will have restricted access for some of the day.

Drivers are being advised to avoid these areas where possible, or allow more time for their journeys.
