

Posters on parade

Don't miss the latest poster display at London Transport Museum.

FEATURING 21 stunning original prints from the museum's collection, 'Reimagining Historic Posters' focuses on the ways that graphic designers and artists have been inspired by and engaged with past poster designs.

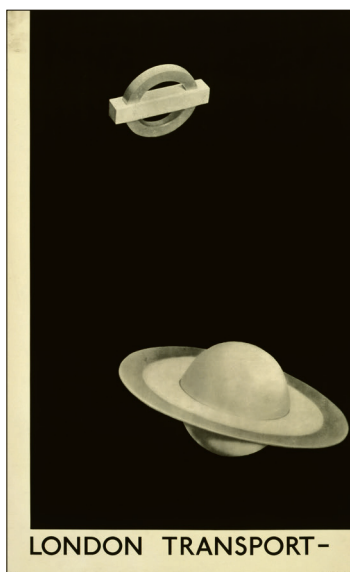

Whether promoting travel etiquette or sightseeing in the capital, these posters show how memorable designs and messages can be reinterpreted for contemporary audiences.

Look out for two of the most popular and iconic posters from the collection (pictured) that will be on display - 'London Transport' by Man Ray, 1938, and 'Brightest London and Home by Underground', by Horace Taylor, 1924.

A large selection of posters are available to buy from the museum shop. Prices start from £4.95. The exhibition is open to all museum ticket holders from Friday until April 27 2017.

■ Tickets on the door are £17.50 for adults (£15 for concessions) and allow unlimited visits to the galleries and temporary exhibitions for a year. Savings can be made by booking online at www.ltmuseum.co.uk

The Museum Depot opens its doors

FANS of poster design can also head to the Depot in Acton where London Transport Museum is hosting its first Art and Poster Tour of the year.

Visitors can see highlights from the museum's collection, which features more than 7,000 posters dating back to 1908.

The tour, which takes place on Friday January 27, gives guests a chance to look at some of the original artworks that are rarely seen by the public.

You can also see commissioned works by artists including Abram Games and Edward McKnight Kauffer.

■ Tickets for the Depot tour cost £10 (concessions £8.50). Tickets must be pre-booked online at www.ltmuseum.co.uk or via the Museum ticket office. Tours last 75 minutes and include a Q&A session
