Work continues on TfL Rail ahead of the Elizabeth line

STATION and track upgrades continue on TfL Rail between Liverpool Street and Shenfield, which will mean a series of ten weekend closures from Sunday until March as TfL prepares for the opening of the Elizabeth line later this year.

The improvements will include installing new footbridges and lifts at Manor Park, Seven Kings and Maryland, providing step-free access at these stations.

During the closures, Network Rail will install 8km of overhead wires between Ilford and Manor Park, upgrade signals and complete work to link the Elizabeth line tunnels to Shenfield.

Platform canopies at Chadwell Heath, Goodmayes and Ilford will also be repaired and redecorated.

Howard Smith, operations director for TfL Rail, thanked customers for their patience during the work. 'I apologise for the disruption to regular weekend travel, but it's vital that this work is done to improve the railway and upgrade the stations to make them accessible for all.'

Rail replacement buses will call at all affected stations each weekend, apart from Liverpool Street and Maryland. They will also call at Newbury Park for the Central line.
