

Surprise City Sounds by Julia Allum

Night at the Museum

London Transport Museum will open its doors after hours this Friday to launch its new exhibition, The Prize for Illustration 2017: Sounds of the City.

At the Friday Late event, guests can get creative during 'make-and-take' workshops, listen to talks and join a curated mini-tour of the exhibition. There will also be a bar, in-house DJ and a music-themed quiz.

The exhibition will showcase 100 illustrations chosen from the art and design world for the prestigious Prize for Illustration, which is organised by London Transport Museum in partnership with the Association of Illustrators. Themes include wildlife, nightlife, music, markets, transport and sport. The winning design will be announced this month and displayed as a poster on the Underground network.

Other event highlights include a talk with BBC Radio 4's Word of Mouth and historical language expert Dr Laura Wright; face painting designs, including the famous Bowie Zig Zag; and a 'design a postcard' activity illustrating sound through watercolour.

■ The Friday Late event runs from 6.45pm to 10pm and is for over-18s only. Tickets cost £15, concessions £12. Book in advance at ltmuseum.co.uk

All the fun of the fete

HEAD to Greenwich Peninsula on Sunday May 21 for a day of live music, shopping and art and design workshops.

A contemporary twist on a traditional summer fete, the Urban Village Fete is curated by Hemingway Design and will showcase the best in design, music and modern craftsmanship.

DJ Gilles Peterson will be on hand to entertain visitors as they browse the quirky pop-up stalls.

Cycling charity Sustrans will also run bike workshops and talks throughout the day that include lessons on how to repair a puncture and making jewellery and artwork from old bike parts.

Greenwich Peninsula is easily accessed by Tube, bus, river, Emirates Air Line cable car and by bike. Plan your journey at tfl.gov.uk

DESIGNER Wayne Hemingway and BBC Radio London's Robert Elms will cycle to the Urban Village Fete from Big Ben, arriving at Greenwich Peninsula by cable car, and you could cycle with them.

To enter the ballot to join the bike ride, visit weareurbanvillage.co.uk/ bike-tour. The ballot closes on Friday.

Crumbs! More ways to explore your city

AS part of National Walking Month, charity Living Streets has linked up with the Crumbs City Trail app to encourage people to get walking.

Crumbs City Trails are a fun way to explore London and get the recommended amount of exercise (20 minutes a day) for the week.

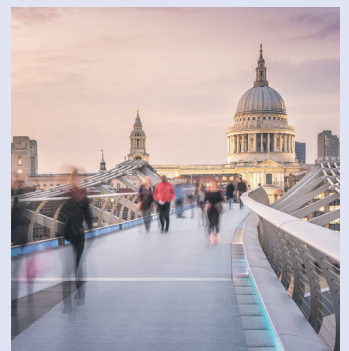

The app takes you on a route scattered with clues and trivia questions to help you discover more about the culture and history of your local area.

There are more than 40 trails across central London available in the app. However, to celebrate National Walking Month, Living Streets has developed a number of free trails that can be completed in about 50 minutes – perfect for a walking lunch. Destinations include Fitzrovia, Brick Lane and around iconic buildings in Fenchurch Street.

The Crumbs City Trail app can be downloaded from Apple and Android stores. All trails are free during National Walking Month.
