

Plan ahead for the weekend

FOR TRAVEL ADVICE TO HELP YOU MAKE THE MOST OF LONDON, VISIT TFL.GOV.UK

CHECK AHEAD TO SEE IF THE FOLLOWING PLANNED WORKS AFFECT YOU. TO REGISTER FOR UPDATES, VISIT TFL.GOV.UK/EMAIL

TfL Rail

Part closure

Sunday: No service between Paddington and Heathrow Terminal 4 until 6.10am, owing to Crossrail work. Use local buses instead. For Heathrow terminals, use the Piccadilly line. Alternatively, take bus route 105 from Southall or 140 from Hayes & Harlington.

Battle buses to join People's Procession

TWO vintage World War I B-type buses will be on display on The Mall as part of A Nation's Thank You - The People's Procession, on Sunday.

It is the first time since the 1960s that B-type buses have appeared in an Armistice Day parade, and marks a century since they returned from the Western Front.

They are two of the last surviving London buses to have served in the war, with only four B-type models left in the world.

One of the buses, known as the Battle Bus, has been restored to the khaki-green camouflage of a military vehicle, while the other is painted in civilian red and cream.

The Battle Bus will be on display afterwards at London Transport Museum, Covent Garden, until spring 2019. Families are also invited to visit the museum between 11am and 3.45pm tomorrow or Sunday, to make poppies and learn about the role of bus drivers during the war.

A piece of history: See London Transport Museum's restored B-type Battle Bus

Paying respects: A B-type bus passes the Cenotaph in the 1923 Armistice Day Parade

Getting out and about

THERE are various events taking place over the weekend as London marks the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I. See below for details of what's on, including how to get there.

FESTIVAL OF REMEMBRANCE

The Royal British Legion hosts the annual Festival of Remembrance at the Royal Albert Hall tomorrow, in memory of all those who have lost their lives in conflicts. Ticket holders will be able to enjoy performances from Sir Tom Jones, Sheridan Smith and Sir Bryn Terfel, among others, as well as the Central Band of the Royal Air Force and the Band of HM Royal Marines.

Getting there: South Kensington (Circle, District and Piccadilly lines) and High Street Kensington (Circle and District lines) are the nearest Tube stations, about ten to 15 minutes away on foot. Several bus routes also serve the area.

BEYOND THE DEEPENING SHADOW

Running until Sunday evening, Beyond the Deepening Shadow: The Tower Remembers, is a public act of remembrance at the Tower of London. The commemorative sound and light installation unfolds gradually from 5pm until 9pm each day, filling the Tower's moat with thousands of individual flames, to the soundtrack of a new choral work with words from war poet Mary Borden's Sonnets to a Soldier. Experience the installation for free from Tower Hill and the Tower concourse.

Getting there: Tower Hill station will be extremely busy. The following alternative stations are all around a ten to 15-minute walk away: Aldgate East (via the District and Hammersmith & City lines), Aldgate (via the Circle and Metropolitan lines), Monument (via the Circle and District lines), London Bridge (via the Jubilee and Northern lines, or National Rail lines) and Tower Gateway (via the DLR).

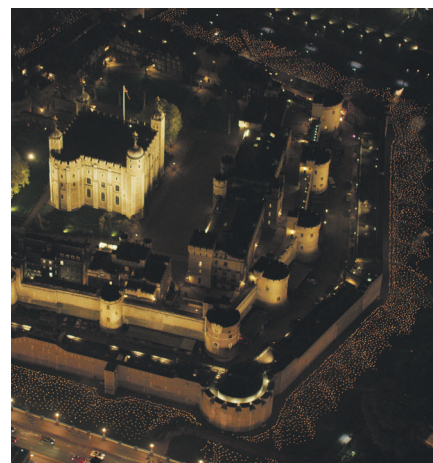

For more information, including walking maps, visit tfl.gov.uk/tower-remembers

THE PEOPLE'S PROCESSION

On Sunday, 10,000 members of the public who have been selected by ballot will pay their respects in A Nation's Thank You - the People's Procession. The parade will travel from St James's Park to Parliament Square, via Whitehall and the Cenotaph. It is part of a programme of commemorative events in the area, running from 8am until 1.30pm.

Getting there: The central London area will be very busy. Check ahead before you travel and leave plenty of extra time. For the latest updates and to plan your route, visit tfl.gov.uk/plan-a-journey

Moving tributes: The Royal British Legion hosts the Festival of Remembrance at the Royal Albert Hall (top and middle); visit Beyond the Deepening Shadow: The Tower Remembers, at Tower Hill (bottom)
TOP AND MIDDLE ROYAL BRITISH LEGION; BOTTOM HISTORIC ROYAL PALACES

For the latest news and help planning your journey, visit tfl.gov.uk